BEGINNING YOUR FAMILY HISTORY

A workshop at Lancashire Archives with Andrew Walmsley

This workshop is aimed at people who are starting to explore their family history, or have taken a few steps and want to learn more. Most of the sources we'll investigate are available online but we will also look at the wealth of material which is available only in archives and libraries. There'll also be an opportunity to discover more about Lancashire Archives with a short tour behind the scenes.

10.30 - 12.00 - The morning session will look at a range of sources and how to access them online or in the relevant libraries and archives

12.00 - 13.00 - Lunch (bring your own sandwiches or visit nearby cafes)

13.00 - 13.30 – an introduction to Lancashire Archives with Archives manager, Jacque Crosby

13.30 - 15:00 - The afternoon session will run through an example of a real family history search using the resources mentioned in the morning session

15.00-15.30 - Questions and close

Feel free to bring your own tablet or laptop and use the WiFi network as we explore the potential of the sources. Please bring your own lunch!
